

Meteorological Situation

Low pressure towards the Faroes and Iceland dominates the Northern Isles, driving a series of troughs across the region, bringing showers/longer spells of rain at times. It will then become more settled through Sunday as high pressure builds across the UK, and low pressure clears over the Norwegian Sea. Lighter winds are forecast next week as high pressure looks to remain in the vicinity of the UK. Local conditions next 72 hrs: Wind: W-ly, moderate to fresh, touching strong tonight and over the weekend. Sea temperature: 13-14C.
