Meteorological Situation

Storm Boleo is passing over Orkney tonight, so winds are light and variable for a time near its centre. As the storm moves away across the northern North Sea on Sunday, winds turn west-northwesterly and increase steadily, reaching gale force with a risk of severe gale, before easing overnight. On Monday winds drop for a time and back southerly, then pick up again from the southeast with rain, as another deep Atlantic low approaches. This brings a further spell of stronger winds on Tuesday, turning southwesterly and then west-southwesterly. Local conditions next 72 hrs: Wind: variable direction, fresh breeze, increasing to gale (risk of severe gale). Sea: moderate on 25 October around 18 UTC. Sea temperature: 12-13C.
